Britain's Unionist Cabinet Now Virtually Completed

IT IS SO BAD TO BE SHIPWRECKED

ANDREW BONAR LAW ELECTED LEADER OF THE UNIONIST PARTY BY UNANIMOUS VOTE

Meeting, Enthusiastic Gathering, Attended By 439 Members of the Party

FIRST CONSERVATIVE PREMIER SINCE 1905

Election Enabled Law To Accept Task Of Forming Ministry

(Associated Press.)
LONDON, Oct. 23.—Andrew Bonar Law was elected unanimously leader of the Unionist party at a party meeting held this afternoon. On leaving the meeting Law told newspaper men he would accept the task of forming a ministry.

The meeting, an enthusiastic gathering, was held at the hotel Cecil, attended by 439 members of the party, including 152 peers. Mr. Bonar Law's election enabled him to accept the task of forming a cabinet thereby giving England her first conservative prime minister since 1905.

It is understood Mr. Bonar Law's ministry is virtually complete.

Mr. Bonar Law declared the Irish constitution must be carried out. Referring to Mr. Lloyd George he said they were sure they would have a pretty stiff tussle, but he hoped they still would be friends afterwards.

France Disurbed.
(Associated Press.)

PARIS, Oct. 23.—The French government is greatly disturbed over the fact that Chancellor Wirth, of Germany, is obliged to have the protection of a strong bodyguard wherever he goes. The feeling here is that a government laboring under such restraint, is unable to deal with the financial situation and the reparations problem.

NOTES EXCHANGED

(Associated Press.)
PARIS, Oct. 23.—British, French and Italian foreign offices were today exchanging views regarding the formal invitation to the Near East conference at Lausanne, November 12. Eight powers will receive the invitations. They are: France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Turkey, Greece, Yugoslavia and Roumania.

The Russian government will be invited only to the second conference which will deal with the question of the Dardanelles.

Legal Victory Won By Revenue Agent

(Associated Press.)
JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 23.—In an opinion read today the supreme court held that the initiative clause of the Mississippi constitution is null and void. The decision is a victory for State Revenue Agent Robertson who raised the question in litigation instituted by him to prevent submission at an approaching election, of an initiative statute, placing his office on a salary basis of $5,000 a year, in lieu of his present commission of 20 per cent.

These remarkable pictures show the burning, in mid-Pacific, of the big liner City of Honolulu, the rescue of her passengers and crew by the freighter West Faralon and the group of happy survivors huddled on the deck of the U. S. transport Thomas, to which they were transferred to be brought back to America.

PREP CLASSIC TO BE STAGED FRIDAY ON HARTSELLE GRID

The prep classic of two states will be staged Friday afternoon on the Hartselle field, when Morgan County High meets Morgan School of Petersburg Tenn. The game will be called at 3:30.

Morgan is the team which last year won the championship of two states by their series of victories over Tennessee's best prep schools during the regular season and their victory over Lewis Hardage's "wonder team" from Georgia Military School in a post season game in Nashville.

Morgan is coached by Red Floyd, former Vandy star. It defeated Lawrenceburg Military Academy 45 to 0 and has not been defeated in several years.

Morgan County High is working hard for the game. Morgan County lost to Lawrenceburg by a score of 2 to 0, but they played Lawrenceburg on Saturday after having played Decatur High here on Friday and after practically an all night trip to the Tri-Cities.

The two Morgan elevens are fairly evenly matched and with the intense rivalry between them, the game is certain to be bitterly contested. An attendance of a least 2,000 is anticipated and many local football fans are planning to make the trip.

Party Attacked By Losing Candidate

(Associated Press.)
NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 23.—The Democratic party of Texas was under "the control of a secret organization, and was not the real Democratic party at the time of the August primaries," W. G. Love, counsel for George E. B. Peddy, who is seeking to have his name placed on the list for election of a United States senator, declared in opening the session in federal court today. Peddy is the nominee of the Texas-Republican-Democratic party, composed of members opposed to the Ku Klux Klan.

BRITAIN FACES MINER STRIKE IN TWO WEEKS

(Associated Press.)
LONDON, Oct. 23.—The union miners have posted notices in all of South Wales mining district that a general strike of miners will occur two weeks hence unless non-union miners join the federation and a 100 per cent membership is obtained meanwhile.

Disappearance of Relief Worker Is a Sensation In Volga

(Associated Press.)
MOSCOW, Oct. 23.—Numerous theories have been advanced to explain the disappearance of Philip Shields, American administration relief worker from Simbirsk, in the Volga Valley, but none has materialized. The incident has caused a great sensation.

Contempt Cases Are Set For Trial

BOLD ROBBERY OF LOAN OFFICE NETS YEGGS ABOUT $200

According to police officers the two suspects held at Decatur, in connection with the robbery Saturday night of the money drawer of the Pilgrim Loan Company were released this morning because of insufficient evidence.

Perhaps no bolder attempt has ever been made in this vicinity to separate a man from his money than the one of Saturday night.

Weaver Rogers, the manager of the loan company, was preparing to close up for the week, when his telephone rang violently. He answered it but no one responded. He inquired of the central operator at once as to who called and about the time he was told the line was clear, two masked men confronted Rogers, and with pistols pointed at him demanded that he put his hands up.

As soon as the manager obeyed, all the money in his cash drawer, about $300, was taken. The man informed Mr. Rogers not to follow or make a sound, that if he did he would lose his life at the hand of a waiting accomplice. But Rogers did follow only to see when he reached Bank street that his late guests had gotten out of sight and sound in a high powered automobile.

County Court In Session For Week

The Morgan County Court, Judge W. T. Lowe presiding, assembled this morning at 10 o'clock at which time the civil docket was taken up and will continue throughout the week. There are 73 cases set for trial at this time, 18 cases being docketed for today's hearing. The first case on the docket for today is Frank Smith vs. L. & N. railroad. A large number of citizens from over the county are in attendance as jurors and witnesses and still others being here having business with the court.

CITIZENS OF ATHENS TO SELL BOND ISSUE TO THEMSELVES AT BANQUET THURSDAY

Civic Dinner Is Arranged To Stimulate Interest In The Plan

'FOREIGN' BIDS FAIL TO PLEASE ATHENS FOLKS

Reports on Recent Fair Show That It Was Financially Successful

ATHENS, Ala., Oct. 23.—Special.—Friday night, Oct. 26, according to Mayor Charles W. Sarver, a dinner will be given in Athens for the purpose of arousing interest in the local sale of $20,000 worth of school building bonds. The issue of the bonds in question was authorized some time in the early spring in an election when "bonds" carried by an overwhelming majority. Foreign dealers have made an offer for the bonds which are secured by the city of Athens; but it is not sufficiently attractive to suit the townspeople.

The first move to appeal to the patriotism of local citizens was made at a recent meeting of the city council, when R. H. Walker and two others were named as a committee to devise ways and means for selling the bonds. Mr. Walker presented a plan to the Commercial Club on Friday night with the result that D. L. Rosenau, W. L. Martin and Mayor Sarver were appointed to arrange for the dinner Friday night.

It was stated by Mr. Walker that at Tuscaloosa a few years ago following the voting of a school bond issue of $100,000, the local people bought the entire issue, one man alone taking $50,000 worth.

When the money on the $20,000 issue at Athens is secured it is the purpose to add a new wing to the large high school building, located in the Fairview neighborhood.

Fair Association Makes Good.
Athens and Limestone citizens are congratulating themselves on the financial success of their Fair which closed a few weeks ago. According to the Secretary, R. H. Walker, every dollar owned by the Association for premiums, has been paid by checks mailed out recently and a nice balance remains in the bank to the credit of the Association, which owes no debts now except part of a street assessment. The Fair Grounds are valued at $15,000 and the original capital was only $5,000.

Farmer Crushed To Death

When his team became frightened on the streets here Saturday a Mr. Willard who was driving, fell from his seat on the wagon and became entangled in the harness and fast moving wheels, with the result that both of his legs were broken and such other severe injuries sustained that he died soon after he was picked up. Much sorrow was expressed by his friends and acquaintances in Athens.

Merchants Raise Prize Money

About $1,800 dollars has been raised by merchants of Athens, which amount is to be pooled and used either in the purchase of prizes, or to be delivered to the successful contestant in cash at a date to be named later.

Masons to Stage Minstrel

It is being planned for the Masonic order of Athens to stage a blackface minstrel, the proceeds for which are to go to charitable purposes, some time in the early part of November.

GEORGIA GOVERNOR CALLS SENATOR NAMES

Governor Thomas W. Hardwick, who was soundly beaten in the primaries to select a successor to the late Thomas E. Watson, junior U. S. Senator for Georgia, has issued a statement denouncing Dr. William J. Harris, senior Senator from the State, as a "liar" and "coward" and offering him "any satisfaction" he wishes. The controversy arose over the election.

STOCKHOLDERS OF OIL COMPANY WILL MEET THIS EVENING

It is important that every stockholder of the Albany-Decatur Oil and Gas Company attend the meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Albany Chamber of Commerce rooms. The affairs of the company will be discussed and it will be determined as to whether the work will proceed.

Those in charge have made an earnest effort and if local people want to know whether oil is here or not the only way is to aid in development of the possibility.

After several years hard work, under many difficulties English No. 1 has been sunk to a depth of 2,230 feet and the only way to bore the necessary 3,500 feet is for the stockholders to get together and aid the enterprise.

"If we have oil let's find it out by completing this uncompleted job, or find that there is no oil here," said one resident today.

It takes some money to do this work and a small appropriation by each stockholder will enable the work to be carried to completion.

More than 50,000 people would probably be brought here at once if oil is discovered in anything like paying quantities and prosperity would at once be the reward.

If something is not done at once drilling will necessarily be closed down.

"Go to the meeting and give help to an enterprise that may mean much to all. Anyway let's know whether we have oil or not. Other sections are booming, why not this?" it was pointed out by a prominent man today.

PRAYER OF OWNERS FOR AN INJUNCTION TO SAVE SHIP BARS REFUSED BY COURT

Stay Extended to Permit On Appeal to the Supreme Court

DAUGHERTY'S RULING IS UPHELD BY JUDGE

Prohibition Forces Win First Victory In The Test Case

(Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Federal Judge Hand today handed down a decision dismissing the motion of foreign and American ship companies for a permanent injunction restraining prohibition agents from putting into effect the bone dry ruling of Daugherty.

He extended the stay temporarily, however, provided the steamship companies file an immediate appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

Counsel for the White Star Line announced his firm and representatives of the 12 other foreign and domestic lines represented in the proceedings would bring an appeal as soon as possible.

The original action against the ruling was brought by the Cunard and Anchor lines which were later joined by ten other companies.

Judge Hand decided in favor of the government on all points.

Ruling In Effect.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The liquor statutes in all the broadened scope outlined by Attorney General Daugherty now are in effect and will be enforced rigidly, Prohibition Commissioner Haynes declared today.

STATE IN CHARGE OF MURDER PROBE

(Associated Press.)

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 24.—At the request of Supreme Court Justice Parker the attorney general's department today assumed charge of the investigation of the Hall-Mills murder case.

Attorney General McRan deputized Wilbur A. Mott, of Essex County, as deputy attorney general in charge. Mr. Mott began his duties immediately.

Charles Ponzi Is Placed On Trial

(Associated Press.)

BOSTON, Oct. 23.—Charles Ponzi was placed on trial in superior court today on charges of larceny and conspiracy as a result of his schemes of 60 per cent returns to investors in 45 days through trading in international postal coupons.

Ponzi now is serving a federal sentence for using the mails to defraud but the United States supreme court ruled he could be tried at this time on state indictments.

$10,000 FIRE DAMAGE

(Associated Press.)

BIRMINGHAM, Oct. 23.—Fire which routed three families from their homes early today, destroyed the residence of J. A. Metcalf and caused considerable damage to the adjoining residences of J. D. Hall and J. C. Stallings. The estimated damage was placed at $10,000.

New York Letter

by Lucy Jeanne Price

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Raccoons in the place of Pekinese! That sounds as if we were, indeed, entering upon a more heroic age. But it's what is predicted for us this coming year. The smartly dressed woman, so we are told, will shortly be leading a full-sized raccoon about on a leash and calling it all the pet names given to lap dogs in the past. A regular raccoon ranch has been established down west of Sheridan Square, and the owner is already doing a thriving business, he declares. "Quite decorous, playful, affectionate and clean" is the praise he gives them, aside from which he points out how much they dress up a woman's costume. So we may as well get to admit them into our city lives.

Edith Wharton's new novel, "The Glimpses of the Moon," continues to be the phenomenal best-seller of the day. You hear discussions of it all the way from luncheon parties at the Ritz to the diners in the quick lunch rooms! The publishers the other day announced that reorders from book-sellers for the novel were pouring in at the rate of 2,000 a day. Two days later they had to retract the statement, a check having revealed that the sales were 224 instead of only 2,000. You know how interested the world is in the doings of smart society, and not only is Mrs. Wharton on the inside but in "The Glimpses of the Moon" she shows with extraordinary frankness the facts of the social world. Of course, in the city here we are much interested in the novel's ruthless picture of the Fifth Avenue folks. The big papers are asking on their editorial pages is society really as depraved as Edith Wharton shows it to be?

What do you suppose is the popular pastime on our close by beaches this summer? Bridge; of all things! Not enough long, cold evenings in the winter to be devoted to it; not enough dull afternoons for us to pass at bridge tables as December descends upon us. No, we got into our bathing suits this summer, get out beside the luring waves, and then cross our feet and play bridge. Somehow nothing has depressed me quite so much as the sight of whole "two hearts," while the ocean curled temptingly at their very toes and got no response.

If imitation means all that it is supposed to mean, Manhattan is certainly doing obeisance to the film city of the Pacific coast. Every third person who starts a business seems overwhelmed with the charms of its name. Of course, there are Hollywood garages in New York, Hollywood apartments, Hollywood millinery shops, flower shops, and cafeterias. Evidently the business man looks upon Hollywood publicity with more approval than the worried residents of that community.

Editors CAN write plays. "Fools Errant," by Louis Shipman, editor of Life, proves this. It is an "eternal triangle" story, but it isn't hackneyed in spite of that, and it pulls on your sympathies in more than one direction at once, which always seems to me a test of the drama. The production might have been announced as an "all star cast," without any difficulty. Alexandra Carlisle, Lucille Watson, Vincent Serrano and Cyril Keightley are enough to justify that, if almost any four people would be, I should say. "Fools Errant" is at the Maxine Elliott Theatre.

There are times when even a governor has no comeback to the comment of a mere woman; and governors as well as aldermen just have to become accustomed gradually to the realization that women can muster up considerable power nowadays. Mrs. Henry O. Havemeyer, widow of the Sugar King, drew amusement from the men as well as women in her audience the other evening when she told of an interview with a governor of this state. She was urging upon him the importance of a certain measure. "My dear woman," said he, "you never could get a man to pass that law." "We don't want men to pass it," Mrs. Havemeyer retorted. "We want women to pass it."

For the first time in many years, Reginald C. Vanderbilt will miss the Newport Horse Show. He is ill with rheumatism and his physician has forbidden his going. It doesn't seem so awfully serious, but for "Reggie" Vanderbilt to be absent when the horses are shown is little short of a cataclysm.

Dennis Shea has been missing some of the night fires recently in the Long Island town where he serves on the volunteer fire corps. He has been one of the most regular and hardest workers at those which took place in the daytime, however, and when the matter of the seventeenth annual parade of the corps came up, it was decided that Mr. Shea had a perfect right to be one of the marchers in spite of his occasional remissness when it came to getting out at night. This decision was based on the fact that Mr. Shea is no longer as young as the average fireman—volunteer or otherwise. In fact, he has passed his ninety-first birthday and has served as a volunteer fireman for seventy years. So it seemed as though a margin of clemency might be due him.

New York jewelers are dismayed—and even excited—over the duty on platinum provided in the amendment to the tariff bill introduced by Senator Poindexter. The United States Geological Survey reports practically no commercial production of platinum on the North American continent, and American manufacturing jewelers have always been dependent upon importations of that precious metal for making of the jewelry sold both at home and for export trade. There is already a duty on the jewelry itself, but because of the skill of our designers and workers, we have been able to import platinum, make it up and then export it to compete with goods manufactured abroad. It is nonsense, the parties declare, to talk a thing which does not exist in this country in large enough quantities to amount to anything. "Unless some one has found a platinum supply somewhere in the U. S. A. and let Senator Poindexter in on the secret, the whole thing is beyond us," one of their representatives said. It is nice to think of our lovely things being worn up and down the boulevard in Paris, but the only platinum ornament I have been able to acquire is one my dentist thrust unwillingly upon me—and goodness knows, the cost of that impressed me enough!

Our artists never would get narrow in their outlook if they all combined their fields of art and activity as does Joseph N. Jacobson. His studio at 54 West Ninety-first street is furnished with an easel and a huge gas range. One is as much an equipment of his life work as the other. With impartial affection, he carries on his twin arts of painting and cooking. He has been chief of the Czar of Russia, a grand duke, and the United States Senate. He has done magazine covers in Russia, France and Sweden. He congratulates himself that cheffing is more profitable than painting! But he loves them equally and divides his time with as close to equality as he can manage orders for the two produces.

The E. T. Stotesburys, of Philadelphia may become bona fide residents of your city. They are looking at the home of George J. Gould, at 857 Fifth avenue, with a view to buying it.

There's just no counting of Nature. She chooses the most unexpected places and occasions in the world to assert her power. You'd think if there were any place in which you would be removed from her vagaries it would be in such a one as the Cafe des Beaux Arts. But the other day, the diners were startled to see some titles suddenly leap into the air from the middle of the floor and then a stream of water spout to the ceiling. Patrons and waiters were drenched.

MILLIONAIRES FORM NEW HOBO COLONY

Boston and New York society folk, with millions in money and eccentric ideas, have formed a Hobo Colony, under the leadership of John Knowles Bourne, millionaire "farmer," and are now located near Buzzard's Bay. Charles Garland, who refused his father's millions, cast off his wife and took two soulmates, is a member. The Hobo Colony began in the "Waffle shop" of Mary Whipple, in Boston, but when that place was closed by the police they moved to quieter zones. The stated purpose of the "Hobo Corporation" is "to fight unions, protect the elect from the restrictions of the great unwashed and to secure freedom to enjoy the untrammelled luxury of life, liberty and pursuit of happiness." Mrs. Frederick Snow has repeatedly shocked society by her madcap adventures.

Of course, it was assumed a pipe was broken. But no. It was just that a spring had at one time gushed forth at the place and after all these years of stillness had decided to gush once more.

Now pajamas are considerable closer to a man's regular clothes than is a bathing suit, surely. So after all, why should there have been such a commotion when a bathrobe appeared on the bench at Breezy Point last Sunday, attired in his best suit of that wear? He says he can't understand it, anyway. He wore them just because they do cover one so much better than a swimming costume, and while his motive was the avoidance of sunburn, he thinks it ought to meet equally well the responsibility motive of the authorities. A soft white hat topped his costume and until the startled on-lookers discovered what his clothes really were, they thought a Beau Brummel from Central America had come among them.

Detectives of the Missing Persons Bureau believe that Edward Fuson, a night watchman for a steamship company, in this city, who died in a Brooklyn lodging house was an English nobleman. Photographs in his cheap room seem to have been of himself in court costume, and newspaper clippings bore out the theory.

DID YOU KNOW

Rutherford B. Hayes 1877-1881. The nineteenth president to serve his country as president was of Scotch descent, being born Oct. 4, 1822, in the same year as General Grant, his predecessor. His birthplace was in the little town of Delaware, O. He was a graduate of Kenyon College and received his diploma in 1842, taking up the practice of law. Immediately after the expiration of his college term. In 1852 he was married to Lucy Ware Webb. Hayes was of Republican persuasion politically and a Methodist religiously. He was inaugurated at the age of 54 and served four years at the helm of the nation. He died at the age of 70. Next, James A. Garfield.

WORDS OF WISE MEN

Proverbs are the gold dust of ages.
A great ship must have deep water.
Innocent amusements are blessings.
A hook's well lost to catch a salmon.
The last argument of a fool is anger.
A great reputation is a great charge.
A clear statement is half the argument.
The truth can always be told in a few words.
Beware of no man more than thyself.
Step after step the ladder is ascended.
Reproof never does a wise man harm.
Set not your loaf in till the oven's hot.
True freedom is the right to do right.
A man apt to promise is apt to forget.
"All alone" is better than bad company.
Don't turn your back on the truth and always face a lie.
A happy heart makes a blooming visage.
It is easy to scoff, but it is finer to forbear.
Agriculture is the chief foundation of nations.
A good presence is a letter of recommendation.
A liar is not believed when he tells the truth.
A good tale is none the worse for being twice told.
Take aim or you will waste your ammunition.
Don't put on airs, you will only air your littleness.
Fortune sells what she seems to give.

Miner's Cradle.

The cradle is a simple appliance for treating "pay dirt" earth and gravel containing gold-dust. It consists essentially of a box, mounted on rockers and provided with a perforated bottom of sheet iron in which the "pay dirt" is placed. Water is poured on the dirt, and the rocking motion imparted to the cradle causes the finer particles to pass through the perforated bottom on to a canvas screen, and thence to the base of the cradle, where the gold-dust accumulates on transverse bars of wood called "riffles."

DODGE BROTHERS BUSINESS SEDAN

Exceptional interest has been aroused by the practical arrangement of the interior.

The entire rear compartment furnishings—seat, seat cushions, back cushions, seat frame, foot rest, carpet and all—can be removed from the car in a few moments.

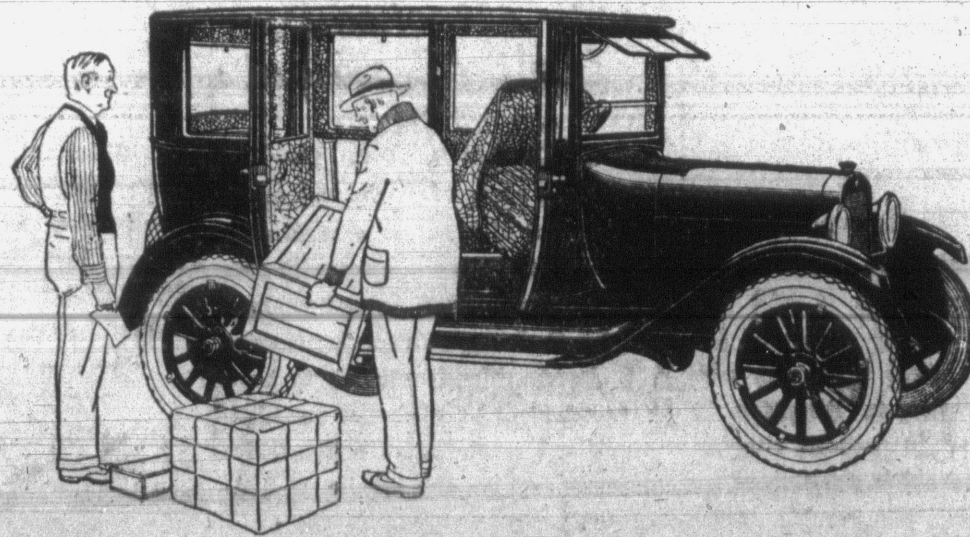

The front seat is then tilted forward, giving a gross clearance of twenty-two inches through the rear doors.

In this way, a space of sixty-four cubic feet in the rear compartment is made available for loading.

When the rear seat fixtures are back in place, the interior is complete and attractive in appearance. Its convertibility is not apparent to the eye.

Business men, farmers, salesmen, campers, tourists and everyone who has occasion, at times, to carry bulky articles or luggage, will readily appreciate the great utility of this construction.

A LIGHT IN THE DARKNESS AT THE RIVER FERRIES.

The mishap that came to a company of tourists at one of the local river ferries last week has raised once again the mooted question as to the need of a lighting system at each ferry end.

It is stated on good authority that the Sewanee party is not the first one to drive off into the Tennessee at this point.

One of the first comments to be made by certain members of the automobile firm that repaired the car damaged at the Ferry Friday night was to the effect that there should be suitable lights placed at each ferry landing and he added—"there are too many people crossing and recrossing the river at Albany and Decatur to leave the ferries unlighted at night."

The last remark irrevocably tips the balance in favor of lights in the darkness at our river ferries. As long—as was the case years ago—few, except farmers of neighboring counties and a few traders here and there crossed the Tennessee river at the Twin Cities, and when these crossed mostly in day there was no need of lighted ferries; but with increased populations throughout the Tennessee valley, and the increased travel from North to South, especially since the general use of the automobile too much care cannot be exercised in the matter of providing safe crossings.

At first blush it may seem that nobody but an extremely careless person would drive off into the fourth largest river in the greatest country in the world—it looks like a blind person would see as large a sheet of water as the Tennessee river—but suppose tourists should be misdirected as those Friday night are said to have been—since the road ways lead directly toward the river is it such a strange thing that an auto driver should keep going as long as the way was clear before him.

Besides being, safeguard against danger, lights at the ferry would encourage the use of the ferries, and also help increase the amount of travel through this section, by way of the "Bee Line" road way from the North to the far South.

LEADERS AGAINST DISEASE HOLD OUT LIVELY HOPE.

The Public Health Association recently in session at Cleveland, Ohio, believes that people may attain such a knowledge of the laws of health that a normal person may easily live for more than four score and ten years—which is beyond the 100 mile stone.

Says a resolution passed at Cleveland by this association:

"We, the health officers of our communities, are confident that there is nothing impracticable or extravagant in the proposal we make that many nations may attain such knowledge of the laws of health, appropriate to each age and occupation, to such climate and race, that in the next fifty years 20 years can be added to the expectancy of life. This ought to be comforting information to the life insurance companies. The Cleveland convention took itself so seriously on the question of prolonging life that it made an address "to the public"—which says among other things:

"Within the past 75 years the average duration of human life has been extended by not less than 15 years in many of the great nations of the world" and "gains in length of life have been greater in the past 20 years than in the previous 50."

"The improvement in the prospect of long life is not only continuing, but at an accelerated rate," the resolution said. "Nor is there reason to doubt that certainty of still further great additions to the expected span of life may be expected for those peoples who read aright during the next 50 years.

"It is the opinion of the American Public Health association that the maximum life expectation is far from having been attained even with no further additions to our knowledge of the causes and means of preventing disease."

Let those become over confident as to expectancy of life it should be borne in mind that as fast as medical skill finds and destroys one set of disease germs, others just as deadly or more so make their appearance. Where man's skill abounds, the infernal skill of disease also abounds.

And it should be recalled that our present increased expectancy of life has come about by the salvation of young babies from premature death, and that so far as adults are concerned fewer people are reaching an extreme age now, than used to be the case, years ago.

AWAKENED CHINA ASSUMES NEW TYPE OF RESPONSIBILITY.

China, for centuries the "Slumbering Giant of the East," is awakening. Of this there is no doubt. It is seen in the efforts of the Chinese to participate in International affairs. It was seen in China's participation in the World war as a sympathetic ally of the Allied Nations. It was seen in the overthrow of the Manchu dynasty and the establishing of a Republic. It is seen even in the revolutionary spirit aroused in the long apathetic land. It is being shown now in the interest evidenced by Chinese officials, students and people in better health methods.

The annual report of the China Medical Board of the Rockefeller Foundation which has just been published together with the recent announcement from Peking that the Board has given $125,000 each to the Southeastern University at Nanking and Nankai College at Tientsin for science buildings, and equipment, calls attention to the significant fact that the Chinese themselves are beginning to assume responsible leadership in the teaching of modern science and its application to medical education and programs of public health.

Southeastern University is a government institution located at Nanking, the old southern capital of China, Nankai College, in the north, is a private institution receiving provincial aid. Both furnish excellent examples of what the Chinese themselves are now doing in modern education, financed with Chinese money and with the teaching and management entirely in Chinese hands.

Appropriations have heretofore been made to the pre-medical work of five Mission Colleges as well as to a large number of mission hospitals in China. Those now announced are the first gifts for pre-medical teaching that have been made to institutions under purely Chinese auspices.

As the work of the China Medical Board has progressed it has become evident that no general improvement in medical education can be expected until well-prepared students are available in larger numbers than at present.

A special investigation of pre-medical education in Chinese and foreign colleges in China was made for the Board in 1921 by Professor Paul Monroe, of the Teachers College, Columbia University. Final arrangements for aid to these two Chinese institutions were effected during the past summer by Mr. E. R. Embree, Secretary of the Rockefeller Foundation, who has recently returned from China after making a general study of medical and scientific education through Eastern Asia.

In a land where thousands die needlessly every year because modern methods for treating disease and for preventing epidemics are unknown, this interest in medical science and the assumption of responsibility by the Chinese themselves is a most encouraging sign. The wonderful work of the Rockefeller Foundation has had much to do with this new awakening among the Chinese. The Foundation is doing a similar work in many other lands where the people are helpless to protect themselves against disease because they have neither the knowledge nor the means to carry on the fight.—Anniston Star.

SURVEY FOR RIVER PRACTICALLY SURE.

According to Col. J. W. Worthington, chief consulting engineer of the Tennessee River Improvement association, who spoke at a dinner here last night, the congress which will soon assemble is practically certain to make an appropriation of at least $200,000 for the survey of the upper Tennessee river and its tributaries, as recommended by Maj. Fiske, United States engineer in charge of the river improvements in this district. The survey will consider not only a project for improved navigation, but also the development of power and the erection of dams for storage purposes. The survey made under the direction of Maj. Fiske and reported in 1909 does not answer the purposes of the government and did not include streams which are unnavigable but are capable of being harnessed for the development of waterpower. The new survey is necessary in order that the government can authorize the development of power by private individuals or corporations along with the improvement of navigation, as was done at Hale's bar. Mr. Ford, in addition to his bid on Muscle Shoals, has publicly stated that he would like to develop the power on the upper Tennessee and tributaries so as to secure the great quantity of primary power he needs.

Col. Worthington spoke in a most encouraging way of the status of the Ford offer in congress. He believes that the obstacles in the way of taking a vote will be overcome and that the proposition will be ratified as it was made and become law.

It was in the mind of Col. Worthington that the plan for this gigantic development was formulated. In a few hours' conversation he made Mr. Ford see the possibilities, and since that time the great inventor and manufacturer has never wavered in the slightest. The development of power from our bold streams running from our mountainsides seems almost accomplished. It will mean that this will become the greatest industrial region of the world.—Chattanooga News.

THE WOMAN SENATOR'S WISDOM.

Mrs. W. H. Felton, of Georgia, the first woman United States Senator, may probably never take the oath of office at the bar of the Senate, but it would be a great thing for civilization if her brand of statesmanship were more prevalent there, and her brand of philosophy were more prevalent among the people.

"I am thankful for the good laws that we have," says Mrs. Felton, "but even more important are the greater laws that society must observe if we are to have a strong citizenry. We must have more thought of the simple, sweet virtues of life, and men and women must be good because they want to be good. No amount of legislation can make them good, though the future of our nation and of our race depends largely upon it."

These generalities are not so obscure but that any intelligent man or woman can comprehend them. The goodness that does not radiate from the citizenry is no goodness at all. Law-made rectitude is the form, but not the substance of virtue.

The goodness in the citizenry—and there is much of it—does not proceed from the goodness in the government, but is inherent; but the badness in the government is derived solely from the badness in the citizenry.

Mrs. Felton is old-fashioned—how could she be otherwise with 87 years behind her?—but she stands upon solid ground, socially, morally and politically. Individual responsibility at last will determine the destiny of the Nation, not the laws that seek to foster our ideals. We can not shift individual responsibility to the government and expect laws to achieve where the individual shirks.

The law can not create goodness. The law is not a creative force, but a restraining power. The American people can not learn too early that they must be righteous for righteousness' sake, and not because the law requires it. Citizenship is first of all an individual matter, and if the Nation fails in its individual units, it is bound to fail in its collective mass.—Houston Post.

A POLITICAL "HIT AND RUN" GAME

The republicans seem to have tried to stage a "hit and run" game with respect to the tariff legislation.

The Fordney-McCumber tariff bill was passed at the last moment. It was hoped that the delay in enacting the bill would enable the party to "get by" before the public fully understood the effect of the new levies made.

Senator McCumber, whose name the bill bears was repudiated by the voters of his state, North Dakota.

Seeing the handwriting on the wall. Representative Fordney, withdrew from the race for another term.

But it's been a "hit and run" game which has gone wrong. The republicans are going to be retired in this inning without a score.—Gadsden Journal.

DEMOCRATS MUST RECLAIM LOST CONGRESSIONAL.

The Daily Times wafts greetings to the Democratic hosts throughout the country on their successful handling of the political situation. The Republicans are losing ground and it is our opinion that the lost congressional districts will be reclaimed in the November elections.

In connection with this thought, Senator Medill

McCormick, in a desperate effort to draw public attention away from high taxes, high living costs, Newberryism, the huge deficit in the Treasury, strikes, coal shortage and other troubles, tries to raise the issue of the League of Nations. He taunts the Democrats with having dropped the League.

A few weeks ago the country was astounded that Secretary Hughes would re-open as foul a wound as the Newberry scandal; now the thinking people are astonished that McCormick should bring up a subject upon which his party has such a record of faking. So far as the Democratic attitude is concerned, it is recognized that the election in November can have no direct bearing on the fortunes of the League one way or another. If the Democracy should lick the platter clean in the coming election it would be in no position to initiate or carry through any desire it might have in the matter of the League. The Constitution gives to the House of Representatives, for control of which the Democrats are fighting, no voice in the determination of our foreign policies excepting in the matter of declaring war. If the Democrats should win all the Senate seats in contest they could not control that body, which the president, who stands pledged to an Association of Nations, is, notwithstanding that pledge, a bar to such a union for peace.

How much more appropriate to ask, what is the attitude of the Republicans on the subject? Today that party is in absolute control of all branches of the government, with printed in black and white in the record a pledge to go into the League of Nations. The most absolute of all of the recorded pledges on the subject in the one signed by thirty-one of the most eminent Republicans in the country, printed all over the land just before the election of Harding, telling the people that the proper way to get into a league of nations was by electing Harding to the Presidency. Among the signers were Secretary of State Hughes, Secretary Hoover, ex-Secretary Root and former President Taft. Can anyone believe that this statement was sent broadcast without fullest consultation with Mr. Harding and the highest official of the Republican National Committee? It is the recollection of this writer that Senator Medill McCormick himself was one of the immortal thirty-one. Any reasonable man would take the position on that pledge that is binding on the President and his party. But no one can see them making a move toward carrying it into effect. This raises the question of sincerity. There were many who at the time of its utterance believed it was merely a political fake for the purpose of holding within the Republican party that host of Republicans who had enrolled for the league under the leadership of Hamilton Holt. It was another of the many baits the Republican party had used to catch gudgeons—and it caught a great many. If it did not meet with the President's approval, he had a strange way of showing his displeasure. He put Hughes and Hoover in the Cabinet and Taft on the Supreme Bench.

But after the President had gotten his seat warm what did he have to say about the League of Nations, for which he had voted with reservations, when a Senator? In his message he referred to the administration's attitude as "rejecting the League covenant and uttering that rejection to our own people and to the world." Thus the President kept the pledge given for him with his full knowledge and consent over the signatures of thirty-one of the most eminent Republicans in the land. If the President was sincere in the language quoted from his address to Congress, what was he when he consented to the publication of the statement from the eminent thirty-one? And if they were sincere, why are they all so quiet and agreeable to the President's rejection of the League? They do not howl in protest because the President has not put them in the position of being false prophets and face promisers.

It comes with very bad taste for Republicans like McCormick, Beveridge and Adams to ask if the Democrats are still for the league—it is very remindful of the worst political trickery known to the game. They have used that great plan for the cessation of wars as the gambler uses the little ball which he shifts about, first under one shell, then under another, and finally, when all the shells are lifted, lo! it is not there at all. The proponents, following the preaching of the Prince of Peace by the Sea of Galilee two thousand years ago, gave their best, some of them almost their lives, to bring about at last that "peace on earth, good-will toward men" for which he was born, lived, suffered and died in agony on the cross, but the Republican leaders use the great movement as the basis for a vote-getting trick through a solemn pledge to make the League effective—a pledge intended only to help them get the miserable spoils of office.—Huntsville Times.

A PROCLAMATION

BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, The Legislature of Alabama, at a special session held in 1921, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1922; and,

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor;

NOW THEREFORE, I, Thos. E. Kilby, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1922, an election will be held for the vote of qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

(S. 21—Treasley No. 1)

AN ACT
To propose an amendment to Section 93 of the Constitution of the State of Alabama, and to order an election by the qualified electors of the State upon such proposed amendment to be held at the general election next succeeding this Special Session of the Legislature.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of Alabama:
The following amendment to Section 93 of the Constitution of Alabama is hereby proposed and an election is hereby ordered by the qualified electors of the State upon such proposed amendment, which election shall be held at the general election next succeeding the present extra session of the Legislature at which this amendment is proposed. The proposed amendment is as follows, viz:

"Section 93. The State shall not engage in works of internal improvement, nor lend money or its credit in aid of such, except as may be authorized by the Constitution of Alabama or amendments thereto; nor shall the State be interested in any private or corporate enterprise, or end money or its credit to any individual, association, or corporation, except as may be expressly authorized by the Constitution of Alabama, amendments thereto; but when authorized by laws passed by the legislature the State may appropriate funds to be applied to the construction, repair, and maintenance of public roads, highways, and bridges; and when authorized by appropriate laws passed by the legislature, the State may at a cost not exceeding ten million dollars engage in the work of internal improvement, of promoting, developing, constructing, maintaining, and operating all harbors or seaports within the State or its jurisdiction, provided, at such work or improvement shall ways be and remain under the management and control of the State, through its State Harbor Commission, or other governing agency. The location of this amendment shall not affect in any manner any other amendment to the Constitution of Alabama which may be adopted pursuant to any act or resolution of this session of the Legislature."

Section 2. Notice of the election hereby ordered together with the amendment hereby proposed shall be given by a proclamation of the Governor, which shall be published in the newspaper once a week in each county in the State, for at least eight successive weeks next preceding the day hereby appointed for such election.

Section 3. At the election hereby ordered to be held as herein provided, the qualified electors shall vote a said proposed amendment, and on the official ballot printed for such election there shall be printed the following, viz: "Shall the following be adopted as Section 93 of the Constitution of Alabama? The State shall not engage in works of internal improvement, nor lend money or its credit in aid of such except as may be authorized by the Constitution of Alabama or amendments thereto; nor shall the State be interested in any private or corporate enterprise, or lend money or its credit to any individual, association, or corporation, except as may be expressly authorized by the Constitution of Alabama, amendments thereto; but when authorized by laws passed by the legislature the State may appropriate funds to be applied to the construction, repair and maintenance of public roads, highways, and bridges; and when authorized by appropriate laws passed by the legislature, the State may, at a cost not exceeding ten million dollars, engage in the work of internal improvement, of promoting, developing, constructing, maintaining and operating all harbors or seaports within the State or its jurisdiction, provided, at such work or improvement shall ways be and remain under the management and control of the State, through its State Harbor Commission, or other governing agency. The adoption of this amendment shall not affect in any manner any other amendment to the Constitution of Alabama which may be adopted pursuant to any act or resolution of this session of the Legislature. "Yes....."

No.....". The choice of the elector shall be indicated by a cross mark made by him or under his direction, opposite the word expressing a desire.

Section 4. The votes cast at such election shall be canvassed, tabulated, and returns thereof made to the Secretary of State, and counted in the same manner as in elections for Representatives to the Legislature; and if it shall thereupon appear that a majority of the qualified electors who voted at such election upon the proposed amendment voted in favor of the same, such amendment shall be valid to all intents and purposes as a part of the Constitution of the State of Alabama. The result of such election shall be made known by a proclamation of the Governor.

Approved October 22, 1921.
IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery on this 8th day of August, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-two.

THOS. E. KILBY,
Governor.

(H. 35—Clegg No. 48)

AN ACT
To provide and submit to the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, at the next general election an amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, whereby the following municipal corporations, Jasper, Cordova, Dora, Oxford, Talladega, Citronelle, Girard, Albany and Tuscaloosa, in the State of Alabama, may levy and collect through their duly constituted governing authorities a rate of taxation on the property situated therein, not exceeding in the total in any one year of one per centum of the value of such property as assessed, as provided by the Constitution and statutes now or hereafter enacted pursuant to the Constitution; provided, that the adoption of this amendment shall in no wise affect, limit, modify, abridge or impair the power, authority or right of any of said municipal corporations to levy and collect the special school taxes now or hereafter vested in or conferred upon them under the Constitution or any amendment thereto, to which said special school taxes shall be in excess of said one per centum herein provided for.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of Alabama:

Section 1. That the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama is hereby proposed to be submitted to the qualified electors of the State of Alabama for their consideration at the next general election, to-wit: The following municipal corporations, Jasper, Cordova, Dora, Oxford, Talladega, Citronelle, Girard, Albany, and Tuscaloosa through their respective constituted governing authorities may levy and collect a rate of taxation on the property situated therein, not exceeding in the total in any one year one per centum of the value of such property as assessed as provided by the Constitution and the statutes now or hereafter enacted pursuant to the Constitution; provided, that the adoption of this amendment, shall in no wise affect, limit, modify, abridge or impair the power, authority, or right of any of said municipal corporations to levy and collect the special school taxes now or hereafter vested in or conferred upon them under the Constitution or any amendment thereto, which said special school taxes shall be in excess of said one per centum herein provided for.

Section 2. That it shall be the duty of the Governor to give notice by proclamation, to be published in one newspaper in each county in the State at least eight successive weeks next preceding the day hereby appointed for such election on the amendment hereby proposed by this act to be submitted to the qualified electors of the State for their consideration together with the proposed amendment.

Section 3. That at said election on the amendment proposed by this act to be submitted to the qualified electors of the State for their consideration, the qualified electors shall vote upon said amendment, and on the official ballots printed for such election there shall be printed the following, viz: "Shall the following be adopted as an amendment to the Constitution of Alabama: The following municipal corporations, Jasper, Cordova, Dora, Oxford, Talladega, Citronelle, Girard, Albany and Tuscaloosa, through their respective constituted governing authorities may levy and collect a rate of taxation on the property situated therein, not exceeding in the total in any one year one per centum of the value of such property as assessed as provided by the Constitution and the statutes now or hereafter enacted pursuant

WIRELESS HERO SAVES LINER'S PASSENGERS

When the big liner City of Honolulu burned at sea it was the heroism of Wireless Operator H. B. Hancock that saved the passengers and crew. The freighter West Farallon picked up the boats at sea, later transferring all the rescued to the U. S. Army transport Thomas, Captain H. R. Lester of the City of Honolulu, true to traditions of the sea, being the last to go aboard. The private yacht Casima, belonging to E. H. Deheny, oil magnate, also sped to the rescue. Among those rescued were: (1) Mrs. Blanche Lachman, of Honolulu; (2) Roy V. Crowder, general passenger agent of the Los Angeles Steamship Co.; (3) Nelson Lansing; (4) Dr. F. C. Keck, San Francisco physician, and (5) Edward Lachman, of Honolulu.

THE UNWISE LITTLE LADYBUG

LITTLE Miss Ladybug crawled out on the edge of the leaf where she had spent the night and looked longingly toward the lake.

"How lovely it must be to be able to live out in one of those beautiful water-lily castles," she sighed.

"Did you speak?" chirped up a squeaky voice and Cheery Cricket hopped up beside her. "What did I hear you saying about a beautiful castle?"

"Oh, good morning, Cheery Cricket," sighed Miss Ladybug. "I was just wishing I could live on one of those beautiful water-lily castles. It must be wonderful to go to sleep within their fragrant walls and to wake up in the morning, lean over and wash your face in the cool water."

"Hum," chirped Cheery Cricket merrily. "I don't know about that. I should enjoy the fragrance of the lily all right. But I much prefer washing my face in a dewdrop. I'm not so fond of water, you know."

"Well, I can't say that I am either, exactly," sighed Miss Ladybug. "But it must be lovely to feel that you could, if you wanted to, really think that I shall never be happy until I own one of those castles."

"My goodness, then," laughed Cheery Cricket, "go over and rent one. Nothing like it to find out whether you really will like it or not. My advice would be to try it and find out. And chirping merrily, Cheery Cricket hopped away."

The longer Miss Ladybug thought about it the more sure she was that she would enjoy living in one of the water-lily castles. So when the water-lily petals unfolded, Miss Ladybug spread her wings and sailed toward the lily castle.

It was a long sail, and Miss Ladybug's wings grew tired and she stopped to rest on a leaf where a busy spider was weaving a new section to her webby home.

"Did You Speak?"

"Do you think you'd like it?" asked Mrs. Spider, when Ladybug told her where she was going. "Some of my relatives enjoy it, but for myself I prefer the meadows."

"Indeed I shall like it!" Miss Ladybug exclaimed, and away she went, this time alighting on the most beautiful lily castle on the whole lake.

Of course, the keeper of the water-lily castle welcomed her, and she set to work at once choosing just what part of the castle she wanted to live in.

By this time the sun had dropped behind the hills and Miss Ladybug felt the water-lily petals closing over her head, but a strange motion nearly upset her, and when she looked out after a short time, the beautiful water-lily castle was almost under water.

Miss Ladybug, terribly excited, crawled out between half-closed petals and looked around. Sure enough, the water-lily castle she had chosen was fast disappearing under the surface of the water. Before the petals on which Miss Ladybug was sitting dipped into the water, Miss Ladybug spread her wings and flew back to the shore as fast as she could go, and when she looked back most of the water-lily castles had disappeared under the water.

"My, that was a narrow escape!" and Miss Ladybug trembled. She crawled under a leaf and spent the night there. The next morning, Miss Ladybug flew off across the meadow back home. This was the last time she ever spoke of living in a water-lily castle.

FAIRVIEW NEWS

Mrs. Neely Taylor, of Fairview, has returned home after a successful operation at the Benevolent Hospital.

Latest advices from Clarence Jones, who recently underwent an operation in Montgomery for throat trouble, are to the effect that he is not resting well.

Miss Pearl Roan, of Fairview, is spending the week end with her brother, Dr. Avery Roan, on Johnson Street.

Last Wednesday a few of Mrs. S. K. Gary's friends met near the foot of the Hartselle mountains for the purpose of celebrating her birth anniversary. Brunswick stew, barbecued steak and fried chicken were numbered on the bill of fare for the day, everything being cooked in the woods. Games and fishing were features of the afternoon.

Those enjoying this outing were: Mr. and Mrs. Tom Britnell, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Collier, son Frank, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Brittain, Mrs. T. R. McRee and grandson, Milton Thompson; Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Gary and two little daughters, Cecil and Velma.

After dinner Mr. and Mrs. Web Campbell and daughters, Viola, Harry Hunter and Louise Brittain joined the merry party and after a pleasant afternoon all took supper in the woods returning home near dark.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes the Very Newest Chenille Dresses.

JUDITH SMITH writes articles for a fashion magazine, and this morning I had an interesting time going with her for a story.

"Have you seen any chenille dresses?" she asked, as we started out.

"I only heard of them the other day," I responded truthfully, "when Cousin Abbie came back from England with such an attractive one that I wanted to steal it."

"Well, I think they're wonderful," Judith enthused. "They are very smart, and the fine part is that they look so expensive, while, to tell the truth they aren't at all."

My first impression, as we entered the exhibit room, was of a riot of lovely color. There were dresses and sports suits hanging about everywhere, in the most delicious shades of sapphire, wisteria, burnt orange, deep golden brown and many other hues.

"I've come for a fashion story on your importations," Judith explained to the young man who advanced to meet us.

"Jolly!" exclaimed the Englishman, "I've had them up from the Custom House only a few hours. By the way, that gives me an opening for my first recommendation. You'd think these things had just been pressed, if you could have seen the wrinkled state they arrived in this morning."

"But they look beautifully smooth now," I interjected.

"That's it," he went on, well pleased. "They need only to hang a bit after they've been damp or crushed, and every wrinkle smooths out. The necessity of pressing is eliminated."

"Our English girls find this convenient," ent," he went on. "The frocks can be wadded into a suitcase in any old fashion, and are ideal for week-end trips."

"For what season are they especially adapted?" asked Judith. "I can't tell by looking at them."

"We sell them for any time at all," he said smiling broadly. "Some women like them for indoor wear, they're ideal under a heavy coat, and then again they're much seen at the summer resorts in warm weather."

"I must examine the fabric," said the experienced Judith, taking a dress from the hanger. "Why, it's as light as a feather! And the background is of marquisette."

I looked closer and saw that the chenille was applied in squares so that the marquisette showed through, and gave the effect of crossing stripes. The chenille also formed charming border treatments.

"You can rag it out no end," he said, rubbing the fabric roughly between his hands. "And it's as good as new."

"I should think it would be good in children's dresses then," said Judith.

"We sell many children's dresses of chenille," he answered with a smile. Judith responded eagerly when he offered to sell her a dress.

"Shall I take a white frock?" she asked. "or would you choose this one of rich brown blend?"

"Those browns are wonderful with your hair," I advised, "and the henna georgette guimpe makes it nice for indoor wear."

"Yes, and my coat is brown, too," Judith agreed.

While she was trying it on I made this sketch to show Madame.

THREE-MINUTE JOURNEYS

Where Many Layers of Clothing Keep the Children Warm

By TEMPLE MANNING

IN traveling in China, one is struck by the extraordinary combinations and mixtures of the past and present. In the larger cities, Shanghai, Hongkong and Peking, a smart suit of European clothes may be ordered and made by excellent tailors, or a table d'hôte which would seem indigenous to the Rue de la Paix or Broadway may be enjoyed.

The Chinese live in the most crowded and congested quarters imaginable. House rent is reduced to almost nothing, due to the fact that a Chinese can live in a place which would seem uninhabitable to us. To save house rent many live on boats tied up to the dock. Some Chinese are born and die without ever leaving their floating homes. As a nation, the Chinese are frugal and sober. Their needs are very simple.

Many of the customs which have been in use since China was China have never changed. China was a nation in 722 B. C. While America and even Europe were howling wildernesses, the Chinese planted the mulberry tree, tended the silkworms and wove silk into clothes. They developed trade and established markets. A knowledge of astronomy was possessed by the Chinese, and a form of writing was used by them even at that almost pre-historic date. Art originated in China, passed from there to Egypt, and from Egypt made its way to Greece.

Some of the Chinese customs which seem strange to us today have not changed from that very period when they first made silk. For instance, the needs of the Chinese compass points south, the guest of honor is placed on the left of the host, and the Chinese women still wear trousers.

The appearance of Chinese children, particularly in winter, is always of great interest to the traveler. During the cold weather all Chinese children look very fat—the colder the day the fatter the child. This comes from the peculiar custom employed by the Chinese to keep warm.

Instead of changing the garments of children, as we do, from a light fabric to a heavier one—from cotton to wool—the Chinese mother simply multiplies her children's clothing. She keeps adding layer upon layer of the same garments which are worn in summer.

The child assumes an appearance of extraordinary fatness as the weather grows colder. Some children, indeed, look like odd little colored balls with twinkling eyes just peeping out of every bit of summer clothes they ever owned.

Bailey Store On Bank St. Robbed

The store of W. M. Bailey, the corner of Lafayette and Bank Streets, was robbed this morning about 1 o'clock according to L. Lesser who saw the robbers leaving at high speed for the Tennessee River and carrying some bundles. It developed his musing that three sweaters and some shoes were missing from the store of Mr. Bailey.

The glass front of the Bailey store was sufficiently broken to allow one or more men to enter. No arrests have been made as yet.

Keep a Scrapbook.

The habit of reading with a pair of scissors close at hand is an invaluable one to the busy housewife. So often there are recipes, household hints and other odd bits of information that would prove useful, but we have lost account of what or where they are. In every kitchen there should be a scrapbook for such items as the card and the more methodically they are arranged the more useful they will be.

Splendid Sermon by Rev. Goodwin Is Heard at Westminster Presbyterian

Rev. Dr. L. F. Goodwin, the pastor, preached from the Westminster pulpit last night from the text: "I have not found such great faith, no not in Israel," an expression of the Master at the time a Roman centurion asked Him to restore health to one of that soldier's servants.

In addition to his regular congregation Dr. Goodwin preached to a goodly company of the soldiers now located here.

Both civilians and soldiers gave close heed to the words of the preacher, who in the course of his discourse brought out some of the most valued teachings of the gospel message.

A brief scripture reading preceded the selection of the text one verse of which stating that Jesus marveled at the faith of the centurion.

In this connection the speaker said that one of the "most beautiful things" about our language was the many different shades of meaning that were conveyed by it.

"The educated man," said the speaker, "chooses those words which make fine discriminations in the meaning which he wishes to convey." At this juncture he related a story, credited to Napoleon Bonaparte. A soldier is said to have stood over the little corporal and to have said to him "General, I am higher than you"—to which his commander replied "not higher, but taller". Dr. Goodwin said that so far as he recalled the Master had used the word "Marvel" only twice—the time referred to in the text and the time He marveled at the belief of a certain community, in which He had spoken.

The preacher said that the Roman soldier had to overcome a great many obstacles in order to come to the Savior for help. National prejudice,

WORDS of WISE MEN

Take care of the pence; the pounds will take care of themselves.

If you have done a wrong thing, do a manly thing—acknowledge it.

If you cast an eagle it will strain at the bars, be they of iron or gold.

Fools follow the opinions of others; wise men think for themselves.

Genuine work done, that which thou workest faithfully, that is eternal.

A broad margin of leisure is as beautiful in a man's life as a broad margin in a book.

A sluggard takes a hundred steps because he would not take one in due season.

For a true and vigorous spiritual life the first requisite is a kindly warmth of heart.

From exertion come wisdom and purity—from sloth, ignorance and sensuality.

Ideas make their way in silence, like the waters that, filtering behind the rocks of the Alps, loosen them from the mountain on which they rest.

pride, religious prejudice, and custom were some of the difficulties in the way of the centurion, according to the preacher. "While this soldier was trying to help others," declared the speaker, "he found the Savior." "Oh how slow we are to do in accordance with what we know" was another expression of the minister.

An Attractive Musical Program

One of the most attractive of the musical programs, for which the Westminster church, is known, was given last night. The choir sang one or more anthems in addition to the hymns led.

At the close of Dr. Goodwin's sermon, the following sang most acceptably Henry Davis, B. B. Pickens, Walter Dupouster and T. G. Crane.

Mrs. Josephine Kryl White & Paul Taylor White

Miss Josephine Kryl, daughter of the famous millionaire Chicago bandmaster, was offered $100,000 by her father if she would forswear marriage and devote her life to her violin until she was thirty. She declared she placed a loving husband, a happy home and babies above wealth and a career. Her father has cut her off, but she is happy in her Back Bay (Boston) home.

How to Banish "a Cold" In Its Very First Stages

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Commissioner of Health, New York City

YOU feel cold chills up your spine, you have an irresistible inclination to sneeze, your eyes water, your head aches—you have a cold.

What should you do about it? If you would attack a cold with the same vigor you would pneumonia or smallpox, there would be much less sorrow and suffering in this world.

When a cold comes on take your hat and go home at once. Don't try to fight off the cold. That may seem heroic, but it is a foolish risk to your own health, and a menace to your fellows. Your efficiency will suffer anyhow, and you may spend days in bed as a result of your foolhardy attempts to shake off a cold.

Go home, get a pitcher of hot lemonade and fill the bathtub with hot water. Get into the tub, and while there slip slowly several glasses of the hot drink.

As the water in the tub cools, run in more hot water, keeping the temperature as high as you can stand. Stay in the tub half an hour.

Then dry off with a rough towel and go to bed between blankets with a hot-water-bottle at your feet. You will sweat like a football player, and that is the intention.

Stay between the blankets for an hour or so, taking more hot lemonade, until you have ended your sweat. Then rub off with a rough towel and rub yourself with alcohol or cool water. This will "close your pores," so to speak.

Then go back to bed, between dry sheets this time. You will fall asleep, and in a few hours will awaken fresh as a baby, and—nine times out of ten—free from all the symptoms of a cold.

Remain in bed until the next morning, reading between naps if your sleep is not continuous. You will be able to go to work, will be free of the cold, and will no longer be a menace to those you love, as well as those with whom you work.

But the fact that you had a cold is a sign of something wrong. Discover what it is at once. If you are constipated, overcome the immediate effects by a dose of castor oil and the ultimate causes by correcting your diet and habits.

Stop your overworking, master the causes of your worry, ventilate your workplace, avoid dust and smoke, cut down on your tobacco, and increase your hours for recreation and sleep. Overeating and under-exercising, over-indulgence and under-sleeping are the great factors responsible for most colds.

Just as tobacco smoke is a nasal irritant for men, so are certain face powders nasal irritants for a lot of women. Many cases of so-called colds among women are due to poisoning with sachet or face powder.

If you are subject to colds, if you take cold on the slightest provocation, you should seek out the cause and remove it. There must be something fundamentally wrong if you have repeated colds. Wisdom demands that you find out why.

To avoid colds, wash your hands before touching food. On your return from work wash your face, your hands

Answers to Health Questions

MRS. O. Q.—Many times when alone in the house I talk to myself. What do you advise me to do?

A—I would suggest that you break yourself of this habit, which is only a habit. Get more fresh air and exercise than you do now.

MR. F. D. Q—I drink about three quarts of hot water a day. Is this too much?

A—You should not drink so much hot water.

J. A. Q.—Why does my face itch when I eat candies or pies?

A—I am also suffering with throat inflammation. Please give me your advice.

A—I would suggest that you change your diet. Eat simple foods and keep the bowels regular.

2—I would advise you to be examined and treated by a throat specialist.

Hospital Nets $190 From Sales of Flower at Jewelry Auction Saturday

The Benevolent hospital today is without other bids, turned it back $190 wealthier because of the sales to be sold the fourth time.

David Gibson bid $21.00 and was awarded the flower, but he also turned it back for the fifth sale. The excitement, in the meantime, was running high, and the auctioneer called for a shower of dollars in "the big bass drum," the showcase serving to receive the money. Mr. Jiron proposed to be one of ten to give five dollars to buy the plant for Mrs. Gorton, hospital superintendent.

Sixteen ladies added their dollars to the total, Jerre Gibson $10.00, Walter Clopton and John Wyker $5 each. Mrs. Wyker, on behalf of Mr. Clopton and the trustees of the hospital made a short address, expressing appreciation for the sum given.

Sunday morning the plant was sent out to the hospital to the delight of Mrs. Gorton and the nurses. Appreciation for the kindnesses of Mr. Reuther and his associate, and to all those who had taken part in the "action" was expressed.

Thursday Mrs. John D. Wyker was given the plant by Mrs. Willis Henderson, to be sold for the benefit of the hospital. Mrs. Wyker requested permission from Mr. Reuther to sell the plant at the jewelry auction in progress at the Reuther store. Mr. Reuther readily agreed, permission also being given readily by the auctioneers.

Saturday evening was selected as the time and the store was packed when the sale got underway. T. M. Dix was the first bidder finally buying the plant for $28.00. He said "sell it again". Mr. Reuther was the second purchaser, the sale price being $26.00. He requested it be sold again.

S. W. Irwin, a lively bidder on the first two sales, started the third at $25.00 and when awarded the plant, the "action" was expressed.

Four men, arrested at the same club on a charge of gambling, were fined $10 each.

RAIL MEETING IS LARGELY ATTENDED

A largely attended meeting of the rail strikers was held at the Princess Theatre this morning and addresses were made by Rev. C. C. Walker, Rev. T. B. Harwell, Rev. R. F. Stuckey and H. O. Clin.

A letter was read from S. E. Roper saying that he was detained in Louisville but hoped to be home early this week. It was announced that Attorney Hutson had agreed to address one of this week's meetings.

T. Frank Lewis for the Relief Committee, stated that no cases of sickness had been reported. The chairman of the publicity committee read letters from Secretary of the System Federation, Fred G. Wampler.

The meeting was closed with prayer by Rev. G. C. Walker.

FRED PITTMAN DIES

Fred Pittman, son of Mrs. Emma Pearson, and a nephew of Mrs. Mary Faulkenberg, died Saturday at Boulder, Col. The body will arrive at Decatur Tuesday at 1 p. m. and will be conveyed to the city cemetery where services will be conducted by Rev. C. M. Davenport.

Whip Smokers Is Advice To Women

(Associated Press.)

"ZION, Ill., Oct. 23.—Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of the Christian Catholic Church in Zion, yesterday in a sermon advocated that the women of his church horsewhip men who smoke in their presence in Zion. He declared next Sunday he will start a battle by organizing men, women and children to drive every tobacco "skunk" beyond the borders of this city." Zion, long by ordinance, has prohibited smoking.

Recently enforcement of the law against smoking was enjoined.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT "Good Luck"

Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

DEAR ME, how hot it was!

So hot that you could hear the paint on top of the car sizzling and all the grasshoppers along the road were complaining about it.

"The worst I ever remember," buzzed Grandpa Grasshopper.

"I shall never live through it, never!" wheezed Grandmother Grasshopper, and all the little grasshoppers had a beautiful time moaning and groaning, for all excitement, pleasurable or otherwise, is interesting—if you're young enough.

The porter was asleep in the back of the Pullman—two men had taken off their coats, one brazenly and the other with a sheepish, shame-faced grin.

The baby in No. 11 wailed like a lost soul.

He Modeled Placidly

The bride in No. 8 just simply couldn't keep her nose powdered and it worried her to death. She had heard that husbands don't go on loving a woman unless she keeps her nose powdered.

Grandma and Grandpa, coming East for a visit to the new son-in-law, wished they had stayed at home and began to have dark suspicions of son-in-law's designs in asking them to cross the continent at this time of year.

The little girl who had been out West in the movies and made a failure of it, couldn't even read. She was so tired and discouraged!

And the prosperous-looking middle-aged woman with Emerson's essays on compensation and somebody's report of tenement and housing conditions in her Boston bag, looked almost as bored as the people to whom she talked—there is no use trying to disguise it, it really was hot and traveling across the continent in hot weather is nothing in the least like a joke.

Five or six hobble-de-hoy boys spatted and wrestled in the aisle and nobody had spirit enough left to remonstrate with them.

But in the corner of the very hottest part of the car a little red-cheeked, blue-eyed boy with a crimp in his hair that was really too engaging, sat and made little animals from a lump of modeling clay.

First, he made a cow, placid and stupid, and next he made a little dog, a fox terrier, impudent and inquisitive, and then he made a sheep and a woolly lamb. And finally—there was a wriggling snake in his hand—made of clay—it was hideously natural.

Winifred Black

A Boy's Faith

The woman rose and went into her little stuffy bedroom and when she came out she had a little lacquer box in her hand—red and gold it was and smooth and pretty—no end.

"Here," she said, "look in this little box—there is something you like inside."

And the little boy looked, and inside the box he found a funny little fat dog, made of porcelain with bulging eyes and a good-natured whimsical mouth.

"That's a Chinese lucky dog," said the woman who liked little boys. "He'll bring you luck just as sure as you do not lose him."

The little boy was fairly radiant. He held the funny little fat dog, made of China, to his round cheek—the other boys came to see what it was he had.

"Do you believe in luck?" said one.

"There isn't any such thing," said another.

"There is, too," said a third, and in five minutes the car echoed to an interested discussion. Luck or no luck, dogs or no dogs, Chinese ideas, customs—why, it was a regular entertainment!

"B-r-o-o-m—" the thunder began to roll and in the east the black clouds gathered like a pall.

A cool wind rushed through the windows.

"It's going to rain!" said the bride.

"It's cooling off," said Grandma.

"Whew! What a relief!" breathed Grandma.

But the little boy held up his Chinese lucky dog and smiled.

"See," he said. "He's brought us luck already."

And no one could convince the boy that the cooling rain—the saving rain—came as the result of natural causes.

Boils Quit Quick!

S.S.S. Will Prove to You in Your Own Case the "How" and "Why" of its Remarkable Blood-Cleansing Power!

There is a reason for everything that happens. Common-sense kills misery. Common-sense also stops boils! S.S.S. is the common-sense remedy for boils, because it is built on reason. Scientific authorities admit its power! S.S.S. builds blood-power, it builds red-blood-cells. That is what makes fighting-boils. Fighting-blood destroys impurities. It fights boils. It always wins! It fights pimples! It fights skin eruptions! It builds nerve-power, thinking power, the tight-fisted power that whisks a man up into success. It gives women the health, the angelic complexion and the charm that moves the world! These are the reasons that have made S.S.S. today the great blood-cleanser, body-builder, success builder, and it's why results have made tens of joy flow from the souls of thousands! Mr. V. D. Schaff, 557 15th St., Washington, D. C., writes:

Pimples May Be Small Boils!
